We're creating a new cycleway alongside New Birmingham Road (A4123) between Walford Street and Lower City Road in Tividale.

This should benefit all road users, giving cyclists a safe and accessible route to use separate from the main carriageway.

We'll also be improving the traffic signals at New Birmingham Road's junctions with Hill Road and Trafalgar Road, as well as installing a speed ramp to improve safety in Walford Street.

Work starts from Monday (24 November) and lasts for around 21 weeks – please allow extra times for journeys along this route as New Birmingham Road (Birmingham-bound) will be down to one lane from Burnt Tree junction to the Lower City Road junction. Side roads will be subject to some traffic management at times during the works.

We apologise for any inconvenience during these improvement works and thank everyone for their understanding.

We're working closely with Dudley's Burnt Tree junction improvement scheme, and we will be sharing traffic management wherever possible, to keep disruption to a minimum.
